Rationale for Board Approval:

Elementary schools are seeking new strategies and materials for teaching mathematics. Common Core Standards provide an opportunity for flexibility in the use of programs and materials while focus is on College and Career Readiness. An emphasis on the alignment of written, taught, and tested curriculum will be fundamental to the request for board approval of this training. Due to the fact that funding has ended for Math Investigations, schools are working together to address needs for teacher development and effective materials for instruction.

K-PREP math scores, along with results from TUDA, district diagnostic and summative assessments, and school developed measures show a clear need for new methods for staff development and practice. Instructional delivery and understanding individual student needs are keys to achievement and student success. Analysis of TIMSS (Trends in International Mathematics and Science Study) reports show that the students in Singapore have the highest achievement scores in math. A chapter in the book, Outliers, by Malcolm Gladwell, describes processes that lead to higher math achievement that connect directly to Singapore Math.

Hite, Coral Ridge, Hawthorne, Sanders, Watterson, and Maupin Elementary schools are seeking district approval for a two day training this summer in Singapore Math strategies. A trainer from Staff Development for Educators (SDE) will work with one hundred and twenty math teachers, ECE teachers, and other instructional staff on August 8 – 9, 2013. Day one will focus on “Building Number Sense” while day two will provide staff with understanding of “Model Drawing.” All staff involved will receive a resource book, Math With Meaning; Foundations of Number Sense. Each participant will also receive a kit of manipulatives and other instructional material, including 140 place value disks, 10 frame cards for number bonds, and color coded place value strips (10’s, 100’s, 1000’s, and 10,000’s). These materials along with the instructional strategies learned, will be of use on the first day of school.

Instilling number sense is fundamental to concept development in mathematics as our students progress in school. Singapore Math is designed to build student understanding of 10’s, through strategies that move students along a continuum of concrete – pictorial – abstract work. Teachers will gain new strategies for instruction, align actions through vertical articulation and across grade levels, and share outcomes during PLC work.

Each school involved has already gathered staff support and SBDM engagement, reviewed textbook purchasing accounts and needs, and begun plans for review of materials.

The schools involved in this effort are excited about the opportunity to change the way we teach mathematics. We are in agreement that Singapore Math strategies provide for a fundamental change in the way instruction is delivered.
