Observation Schedule

It is fine if you'd prefer to trade slots with someone else if it fits better with your own instructional schedule. Please change the schedule in The Google if you do switch.

Mr. Shaw will cover your classes during your time observing. I did have to consider the following:

1. Your planning periods
2. Mr. Shaw's coverage of lunch. Those observing in the afternoon will only be able to observe two periods.
3. Mr. Shaw's coverage of Mrs. Chastain on Thursdays
4. LABOR DAY – Sept. 5

Date	Periods 1-3	Periods 5-6
8.29.16	Fowler	Napier
8.30.16	Power	Webb
8.31.16	McNeal	Brodeur
9.1.16	Chastain	Chastain
9.2.16	Andrews	Hamlet
9.6.16	Groves	Lear
9.7.16	Guess	Watkins
9.8.16	Chastain	Chastain
9.9.16	Canler	Carmichael
9.12.16	Davis	Swatzell
9.13.16	Jolicoeur	Cherry
9.14.16	Matthews	Porter

*Let me know if you don't see your name!

Remember: You choose the first class to observe. Pick a student in that class who is identified as one of our gap or needs groups: novice, disability, African American, free/reduced lunch, limited English proficiency. Follow that student to observe the student experiences with instruction.

The link for reflection that will address the questions is below. It would be best to reflect soon after you've observed.

<https://go.gl/forms/sf0pNAeHEHcqHK73>

1. Reflect about the student(s) experience through the lens of their equitable experience. Consider: How was the instructional experience tailored to meet individual needs? Were they provided opportunities to content in a way that allowed them flexibility and support in learning (scaffolding, small group instruction, additional resources, differentiated instruction, or other)?
2. If you were a student at TCMs, would you find your time in class valuable?
