Dayton schools sue, accuse state of 'spite' in Dunbar forfeit; OHSAA issues statement

DPS hoping to get Dunbar re-instated to boys tournament.

DAYTON — UPDATE @ 5:45 p.m.

The director of communications for the Ohio High School Athletic Association, Tim Stried, issued a statement Friday on behalf of the organization:

"It is never something that the OHSAA wants to do, in terms of removing a school from any tournament. We feel terrible about the fact that that was needed to happen. Our executive Director, Dr. Dan Ross, made it very clear that he felt terrible that we needed to do this. However, our member schools do have these by laws put in place and it is the OHSAA's job to enforce them."

FIRST REPORT

Dayton Public Schools took legal action Friday to block the Ohio High School Athletic Association from removing Dunbar High School from postseason play.

The school board's legal filing Friday claims that OHSAA's ruling was "without either factual or legal basis" and that its conclusions are "motivated by spite, ill will, and/or a desire to do harm to DPS and Dunbar High School students."

Dayton sought a temporary restraining order in Montgomery County Common Pleas Court. If approved, it would allow the Dunbar High School boys basketball team to compete in the postseason tournament. The challenge came one day after the Ohio High School Athletic Association removed them from that tournament.

Sunday's tournament game has been suspended, pending the legal action, and officials said it will be rescheduled to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. Originally, Dunbar was to play Fenwick, but the OHSAA ruled Dunbar out and reinstated Thurgood Marshall, which had lost in the last round to Dunbar.

The OHSAA cited Dunbar's use of an ineligible player in its last tournament game, and the school's failure to enforce suspensions against multiple junior varsity players stemming from a Jan. 10 on-court fight during a game.

In its court filing Friday, Dayton Public Schools included an affidavit from Dunbar junior varsity coach Donovan Brown. Brown claims that a "John Doe" player who splits time between the junior varsity and varsity teams is the player OHSAA said should have been suspended, but played in a Dunbar tournament game Feb. 23.

Brown says in his affidavit that he watched video of the altercation twice – the day after it happened and again this week – and the "John Doe" player was not involved in the fight, so he was not suspended.

In the primary court complaint, DPS' attorney wrote that "at no point between Jan. 10, 2018, and Feb. 23, 2018, did any OHSAA official advise DPS administrators at either Dunbar or Thurgood Marshall that all players leaving the bench area during the altercation were or should have been suspended for two games."

Miami County engineer asks commissioners to OK $5 license fee hike

Published: Tuesday, March 13, 2018 @ 5:03 PM
By: Nancy Bowman - Contributing Writer

Miami County engineer wants the commissioners to increase license fees by $5 to help generate money for road repairs and paving. Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles

Those responsible for caring for Miami County's roads are pleased they've been able to expand the county paving program in recent years, but could do a lot more with an added $5 annual license fee allowed by the state legislature, County Engineer Paul Huelskamp said Tuesday, in presenting his annual report.

TRENDING: This local student was shot in school. Why he thinks others should walk out Wednesday (<https://www.mydaytondailynews.com/news/local/logan-cole-speaks-out-against-nationwide-student-walkout-demonstration/cg9QY05ZBQdLwRyTpbC1yK/>)

Huelskamp "respectfully" requested the county commissioners to consider an August 2017 letter he submitted discussing the provision to add onto the annual vehicle registration fee, a move he said would generate another $600,000 each year.

The $5 added tax to register a vehicle was approved last month in Montgomery County, where it will become effective Jan. 1, 2019 and is expected to raise $2 million more annually for projects.

RELATED: The cost to register a car in Montgomery County is going up (<https://www.daytondailynews.com/news/local/the-cost-register-car-montgomery-county-going-znYnCnglWCfwDITphqfcOP/new.html>)

The commissioners heard Huelskamp's report and commended his department for its efforts, particularly the leveraging of local funds with state and federal grants for road and bridge projects. The commissioners did not discuss the fee proposal Tuesday. The state law allows counties, but not other governments, to pass the tax following public hearings.

In the annual report, Huelskamp said the county paved 24.55 miles in 2017 at a cost of $1,642,670. He noted, though, the county has 423.5 miles of roads under its care and the industry standard for paving cycles is 10 years. To meet that standard, the county would need to pave about 42.35 miles per year.

In the 2017 letter, Huelskamp said the added money would help the county to get to a 15-year cycle.

Commissioner Greg Simmons asked what other counties had taken advantage of the additional tax.

TRENDING: 6 indicted in connection to 2017 killing of Beavercreek man (<https://www.mydaytondailynews.com/news/local/indicted-connection-2017-killing-beavercreek-man/mDiP4N5q6uZL5AvaJRfLkK/>)

The $5 added tax has been passed by several larger counties while a few others have scheduled required public hearings.

"The larger counties are the ones that have already (passed the tax)," Huelskamp said.

The county the past couple of years could pave more miles because of mild winters and aggressive pursuit of alternative funding, Huelskamp said. Lower salt costs were a factor. This winter, the county spent $250,427 through Feb. 7 on snow removal.
