RE: New Jefferson Elementary School

Description: Hafer and Codell Construction request the Board of Education to approve the cost to complete a geothermal test well and conductivity test required for the design of the HVAC system for the new school. The initial price received by Codell Construction was $22,875.00 which is somewhat higher than expected (Spottsville was $16,500.00). The reason for the increase cost cited was the need to use a mud rotary rig rather than the conventional hammer drilling. As a check, a second price has been solicited. We request approval to have the test well performed for a not to exceed cost of $22,875.00 and, if the second estimate received is lower, we can have that company perform the work.
