Family First/ Cardinal Connection

Farmers Bank contacted Family First & Cardinal Connection to request the school supply lists. Ms. Vonda Todd is leading the charge by engaging the community in a county-wide effort to provide as many school supplies as possible for the students of Livingston County. The FRYSC is helping to promote this drive and sort/distribute the collected items. The community is exhibiting wonderful support as various individuals, organizations, businesses, and churches pledge to provide specific items. There are sponsorship opportunities for budgets of all sizes, and the local County Clerk's Office is serving as a centralized drop off hub for anyone who would like to get involved.

We still plan to have our annual Back-To-School Fair at Livingston Central High School on the last Monday of July (7/29) from 5:00-7:00. The Livingston County Board of Education will be hosting the refreshments and helping us welcome our students back to school. As always, we have several community partners participating with a ton of great information and opportunities. This year the supplies that are normally purchased by Family First for distribution at the school tables, will be delivered directly to the schools, rather than distributed at the school tables that night. However, many community partners will still provide supplies that night. We look forward to seeing everyone, and kicking off another great school year!

Livingston Central High School

High School 101:

LCHS Project Pass sponsored a High School 101 session for upcoming freshmen. The weeklong session kicked off with an informative parent/student breakfast. During the breakfast, parents were given the current LCHS Curriculum Guide and they participated in discussion of various aspects of high school. During the remainder of the week, the students:

- participated in a scavenger hunt during which they learned important locations throughout the high school
 - completed skills and interest assessments
 - explored career opportunities matched to their personalities
 - built drafts of schedules for their high school careers and began narrowing down their pathways
 - read and discussed the student agenda
 - learned about the clubs and extra-curricular activities offered at LCHS
 - walked through a “basic day” at LCHS (tone schedule, class locations, lunches, morning procedures, afternoon dismissal, etc.)
 - discussed emergency drills
 - worked collaboratively with classmates
 - worked on their presentation skills
 - provided constructive feedback to peers
 - learned various study skills
 - identified their own areas for improvement to help them be successful in high school
 - learned high school “survival tips”
 - participated in activities that required them to review math and English skills
 - participated in art activities that helped them break out of their comfort zones & find their creative sides
 - constructed and painted bird houses while learning shop safety tips
 - participated in a cooking contest in which students were judged based on taste and presentation
- High School 101 was a success. We would love to continue this program next year and watch it grow.

June 28 through July 2 seven members of LCCHS FBLA along with their advisors, Leigh Ann Choat and Greta Ramage, traveled to San Antonio, Texas to attend the 2019 FBLA National Conference. Students attended state and national level meetings, participated in their respective business competitions and networked with other members from across the country. While in San Antonio they were also able to experience some of the local culture by exploring the beautiful San Antonio Riverwalk, going on a historical walking tour of the city, visiting The Alamo and Sea World San Antonio. LCCHS FBLA would like to thank the Livingston County Board of Education for their assistance in funding this trip, along with several local businesses and individuals who made the trip possible through their generous donations.

ACT Bootcamp

LCHS Project Pass sponsored an ACT Boot Camp in June and July for those students preparing for their ACT. During the math and science portions, students began by discussing a few practice problems then completing a practice session for both contents in the allotted time. After students finished with the practice they discussed each question individually. While practicing the reading portion, students deconstructed questions to identify what was being asked on the test. During the English sections students discussed each test question, reviewing any grammar/punctuation rules when necessary. Students were also given multiple testing tips and strategies to use. The teachers were very encouraged by the focus and intentionality of the students who attended.

Livingston Central FFA attends State Convention, FFA Camp By Josie Howard, Livingston Central FFA Reporter

It has been an exciting summer for the Livingston Central FFA Chapter. On June 10-13, 11 members went to the 90th annual FFA State Convention in Lexington, Kentucky. This trip was an eye-opening experience as an FFA member. Many of our members were honored this week. Jack Howard was awarded first place in Fiber and Oil Crop Production Proficiency as well as serving on the State Officer Nominating Committee. Lauren Schmitt was awarded first place in Goat Production Proficiency and second place in Diversified Ag Production Proficiency. Emily Padon competed in Ag Mechanics Impromptu. Jack Howard, Emily Padon, and Abigail Calender all received their State FFA Degrees. Our Chapter was awarded for 100% membership and rated gold, the top rating, which is based on our activities and how we compare to other chapters in the state.

On June 24-28, 14 members traveled to Hardinsburg, Kentucky to the Kentucky FFA Leadership Training Center. Many fun activities at camp kept members busy throughout the week including officer training which allowed our chapter leadership team to better understand their duties and become better leaders. Other activities such as athletic periods gave members recreation time to play fun games such as volleyball, basketball, and softball as well as taught members valuable skills such as teamwork and sportsmanship. Chapter hour allowed our members to establish chapter goals for the upcoming school year and plan new events. The low ropes course was an exciting experience that taught members communication skills and brought our chapter closer together. On Monday night, the chapter presided over the night session. On Friday, some of our members received awards for this week. Trey Debes received a leadership award for top 10% and Sheyenna Stytz was awarded outstanding leadership earning top 1/3 of the 10%. Sheyenna Stytz was also on the winning athletic team. Tyler Calender competed in the camp quiz contest and Robert Schmitt ran for camp council. FFA Camp was a truly impacting trip that I encourage everyone to experience. These experiences have prepared us for an exciting 2019-2020 school year
