Annex I: Section C

An individual who decides to invoke this arbitration option must take the following steps prior to initiating an arbitration claim: (1) raise the claimed violation directly with the organization and afford the organization an opportunity to resolve the issue within the timeframe set forth in Section III.11(d)(i) of the Principles; (2) make use of the independent recourse mechanism under the Principles, which is at no cost to the individual; and (3) raise the issue through their Data Protection Authority to the Department of Commerce and afford the Department of Commerce an opportunity to use best efforts to resolve the issue within the timeframes set forth in the Letter from the International Trade Administration of the Department of Commerce, at no cost to the individual. This arbitration option may not be invoked if the individual's same claimed violation of the Principles (1) has previously been subject to binding arbitration; (2) was the subject of a final judgment entered in a court action to which the individual was a party; or (3) was previously settled by the parties.

In addition, this option may not be invoked if [an EU Data Protection Authority or the Commissioner] (1) has authority under Sections III.5 or III.9 of the Principles; or (2) has the authority to resolve the claimed violation directly with the organization. [A DPA's/the Commissioner's] authority to resolve the same claim against [an EU or a Swiss] data controller does not alone preclude invocation of this arbitration option against a different legal entity not bound by the [DPA/Commissioner's] authority.

Storage of your personal information

Capstone will only store records of your personal information for as long as is deemed reasonably necessary for the purposes for which it has been collected, and in order to comply with any statutory or regulatory obligations in relation to retention of such records.

Your IP Address

Capstone collects IP addresses for the purposes of system administration, to generate aggregate information, and to audit the use of the website. When you request pages from the website, Capstone's servers log your IP address. Capstone does not normally link IP addresses to anything personally identifiable, which means that your session will be logged, but you remain anonymous to Capstone. Use of Cookies

Like most other e-commerce websites, the Capstone site uses "cookies." Cookies are small files placed temporarily in your Internet browser that keep track of your stay at our website. The text in a cookie, by itself, only tells Capstone that you have visited the website before. A cookie generated by the website contains no information about you and does not gather information from your computer about you. It contains only an alphanumeric ID that, for example, allows you to retrieve your shopping cart.

This website creates a cookie (a small piece of computer code) which is sent to and stored on your computer containing a unique session identifier only. This identifier is used to record site-usage statistics. In a separate automatic operation the web server will collect your IP address and details of the website from where you came before entering this website. This information is used to:

- ✓ record how many times the website has been visited
- ✓ record which areas of the website have been visited to improve its content and layout

The information collected is stored on your computer and will automatically be deleted if you do not revisit this website for 90 days.

If you do not agree to this website's use of cookies, you will need to disable cookies in your web browser settings — in doing so, you may experience some loss of functionality while browsing the website, particularly related to the online shopping cart.
