Guidance on Calendars: Beginning with the 2018-19 school year, a local board may adopt a variable student instructional school year (VSIY) calendar with the first student day starting no earlier than the Monday closest to August 26, but student days can be no longer than 420 minutes. The school year shall still meet the 1,062 student instructional hour requirement.

If a school district elects to utilize a VSIY, school district employees with contracts based on the school term will receive credit for 170 days toward the total number of days required by their contracts when the school district completes 1,062 hours of instructional time. Employees with contracts based on the school term will be required to complete any additional contract days above the 170 days achieved using the VSIY.
