Overview:

Research plays a vital role in our lives, from healthcare and education to technology and social policy. It is a process of investigation aimed at finding solutions to problems, expanding knowledge, and advancing our understanding of the world. Research is essential for the progress of society and the development of new ideas, technologies, and innovations" (Francie Atienza). Many stakeholders in education (teachers, students, school administrators, and principals) want evidence that programs are working the way we want them to. By engaging in this research project, you are contributing to the development of new ideas and understandings - contributing to a better understanding of our world, especially in the field of education. This new knowledge may also help other people in the future.

What is the purpose of this study?

In this study we are interested in learning about how the student thinks about empathy, civic engagement (e.g., volunteering and service learning), listening to others, and respecting those who are different from themselves.

How many people will take part in this study?

We are asking approximately 250+ students across 4 schools to participate in this study.

How long will my part in this study last?

Your participation is expected to take up to 10 weeks (or less) and will occur during school hours in your classroom. You will be asked to complete 5 surveys at 5 time points.

What are the possible benefits for you to participate?

Research is designed to benefit society by gaining new knowledge. The benefits to you from being in this study may be improved empathy, compassion, connection to peers, and pro-social attitudes.
