KASS Superintendent's podcast

Takeaways to help
Board and Staff

The Commissioner was asked to be a part of the KASS Superintendent podcast on February the 13th, which was a good opportunity to brief our school senior leaders about ongoing matters, particularly legislative and legal. Executive Director Jim Flynn has been very supportive of keeping the association out in front of superintend. There was a time when we had a significant number of superintendents on our board, which enabled additional statewide communication. Board involvement and membership are always cyclical, and therefore, it's important that we take every opportunity we can to appear before those groups.

General Commentary

For the 26-27 school year, we will likely reassign staff to attend various co-op meetings. If nothing else, it's an excellent way to ensure that the association's staff and board are not blindsided by issues dominating the conversation among superintendents. It also reflects the fact that those at the various co-ops do not always share the same opinions, and that diversity of opinion is important to be known. We are grateful for the superintendents who are on our board right now and the excellent communication they give to all of us
