Positive Developments and Highlights	While football is still ongoing and in the middle of its playoffs, it has been a relatively smooth year. We're seeing a lot of turnover with new officials and even some cases of new assigners, which has continued to illustrate the fact that, while some people feel like repeating things in the same manner you did a year ago is redundant, the audience is constantly changing.
Issues of Concern (legal, playing Rules, fiscal management, etc.)	We continue to have a rolling four year agreement with the University of Kentucky to host several of our championships. It is entirely possible in the future that our championship date could conflict with any changes to the NCAA Playoff System. This should be closely monitored by the staff and the board be kept apprised of any necessary movement.

Championship Update/Review	We're just finishing the first week of the playoffs, which, as usual, had a few close games but several games that were not close. The attached chart shows the comparison of scores for the past several years. It is clear that the board, making the proper decision based on the membership requests, that the first round of the playoffs be in adjacent districts creates potential other issues that should be monitored. In those years when the "Sister districts" are used, there are generally more teams who choose not to enter the playoffs, and the scores of the games are generally further apart. It is simply something that should be monitored and not necessarily a change proposed. In fact, participation in football is at an all-time high right now, and there are probably many reasons, including additional practice opportunities with nearly everyone in the playoffs. One point always worth making is that football remains the only sport where you only qualify for postseason if you finish in a certain position in a seeded district. In all other team sports, you qualify for the postseason regardless of your regular-season seed position. That will likely always be a point of discussion and potentially a bone of contention among people who did not play in the current system, which has been going on for almost 20 years and perhaps played in a more restrictive postseason competition environment
Officials Update/Review	Numbers are stable, but looming ahead is a loss of a good segment of the veteran population
Staff and Worker Update	N/A
Fiscal and Budget Issues and Review (attendance, etc.)	Will be reviewed after the season
